When to Call the Doctor

For those nights when you're not sure if it can wait until morning. When in doubt, call your pediatrician. Most offices have a nurse line after hours.

Call 911 or go to the ER now

- Trouble breathing, or lips or face look blue or gray
- Very hard to wake up, or not responding to you
- A seizure, a serious injury, or bleeding that won't stop
- May have swallowed medicine, a battery or something poisonous

Call the doctor today

- Baby under 3 months with a temperature of 100.4°F or higher. Call right away, even at night.
- A fever that lasts more than 2 to 3 days
- Signs of dehydration: few wet diapers, no tears, a dry mouth
- Ear pain, or a cough that keeps getting worse
- Your gut says something is off. You know your child best.

Usually fine to watch at home

- A runny nose, but still eating and playing
- A low fever in an older child who's drinking fluids
- Throwing up once or twice, then keeping small sips down

This is general information, not medical advice. Always follow your own doctor's guidance.

Checkups and a Safer Home

Two things that are easy to put off. Track the visits on the left, and walk through the house with the list on the right. It takes about 15 minutes.

Well-child visits

Based on the American Academy of Pediatrics schedule. Ask your pediatrician which vaccines are due at each visit.

Whole house

- ☐ Smoke alarms on every floor, tested monthly
- ☐ Carbon monoxide alarm near bedrooms
- ☐ Dressers and TVs anchored to the wall

Kitchen and bath

- ☐ Medicines locked and up high, including your purse
- ☐ Cleaners out of reach
- ☐ Water heater at 120°F or lower

Bedrooms

- ☐ Babies sleep on their back, with no pillows or blankets
- ☐ Blind cords tied up and out of reach

Car and outside

- ☐ Car seats checked. Many fire stations do it for free.
- ☐ Pool or hot tub fenced and gated

04

If Something Happens to Me

Nobody likes this page. But it's the one that matters most if the worst ever happens. Think of it like a car seat: you hope you never need it, and you're glad it's there.

Three questions to answer

- Who would raise my kids? If no guardian is named in a will, a court decides.
- Could my family stay in our home? Think rent or mortgage, childcare, groceries, and college one day.
- Would anyone know where everything is? Accounts, policies, passwords, the important papers.

Important papers

DOCUMENT	HAVE IT?	WHERE IT'S KEPT
Will, with a named guardian	☐ Yes ☐ No
Life insurance policy	☐ Yes ☐ No
Birth certificates	☐ Yes ☐ No
Social Security cards	☐ Yes ☐ No
Bank and retirement accounts	☐ Yes ☐ No
Passwords	☐ Yes ☐ No

Something a lot of moms don't realize

If you're the one at home with the kids, your family still depends on you. Childcare, school runs, meals, all of it would need to be paid for. Life insurance isn't only for the parent with the paycheck.

05

Your Family Protection Checklist

Tick these off one at a time. You don't need to finish this week. Just keep moving down the list.

Health and safety

- ☐ Info sheet filled in and posted
- ☐ Kids' checkups up to date
- ☐ My own yearly checkup booked
- ☐ Home walk-through done
- ☐ Poison Control saved in my phone

Protection

- ☐ A guardian chosen and written into a will
- ☐ Important papers in one place
- ☐ Life insurance that covers our home, childcare and the kids' future
- ☐ Beneficiaries checked and up to date

Not sure how much coverage your family would need?

A licensed advisor can walk you through it on a short call, using your real numbers. There's no pressure to buy anything. You'll just know where your family stands.
